The Northwest's first SWANA Chapter Solid Waste Truck Road-E-O will be held at the Volcanoes Stadium in Keizer/Salem, Oregon. Hosted by the Oregon Beaver Chapter, The event offers an opportunity for industry drivers from both the private and public waste sectors to compete for top honors in demonstrating their driving knowledge and skills. The competition includes a behind-the-wheel test that requires each driver to maneuver industry-standard roll-off, front end loading, and automated sideloading vehicles through a preset course that will challenge the driver's skills at starting and stopping the vehicle, negotiating the road, and backing up the vehicle while exhibiting general safe driving skills. All drivers will be judged and scored for accuracy and time. Awards will be presented for the first, second and third-place finishers in each truck category.

What's a Road-E-O™

The SWANA Road-E-O is a great opportunity for the “front-line” employees in the solid waste management field - truck drivers, heavy equipment operators and mechanics - to obtain education through formal training and networking. The Road-E-O also gives these front-line employees a chance to display their on-the-job skills in a competitive arena.

Many of the SWANA Chapters hold an annual local Chapter Road-E-O event. Competitors from both the public and private sector are welcome to participate, as long as they or someone within their employer or sponsorship organization is a SWANA member.

There are typically three separate competition categories – landfill equipment, truck equipment, and equipment mechanics. The truck category includes five different truck classifications, covering all aspects of solid waste collection and transfer. The 2010 Oregon Chapter Road-E-O will feature three of these truck classifications. They are roll-off, front loader, and automated side loader. This year, the Oregon Chapter Road-E-O event however will not include the landfill equipment or the equipment mechanics categories.

A roll off truck maneuvering through an obstacle

The 2010 Oregon Chapter Truck Road-E-O starts Saturday morning with contestant and attendee registration at the Volcanoes Stadium parking lot. Competitors will initially be given a verbal briefing on the competition, its rules and scoring procedures. A course walk-through will then be conducted so to introduce the drivers to the course and the seven obstacles that must be completed. The course is intended to test the driver's ability to start and stop the vehicle, negotiate the road, back up the equipment, and exhibit general safe driving skills. Once the competition begins, each driver must complete a short written exam on general knowledge of the equipment and driving safety.

The driver will then be allowed a few minutes to familiar themselves with the piece of equipment they must use for the driving skills competition. When instructed, they must then perform a commercial driver license (CDL) pre-test inspection, including an air brake procedure of the vehicle. This will then be followed by the driving skills portion of the event.

The driving competition will continue throughout the day Saturday. The winners are determined by the highest combined score of their written exam, pre-trip vehicle inspection and driving/operating skills. The winners will be announced on Saturday after the competition is completed. Awards will be given to the first, second and third-place finishers for each truck classification.

The first and second-place winners of each classification will be eligible to advance to the annual SWANA International Road-E-O event which pits the winning drivers from the various Chapter events against each other. For 2010, the International Road-E-O is tentatively scheduled for September in Glendale, Arizona.

As with all SWANA events, there is a high level of professionalism. The Road-E-O is one of the only events strictly for the front line employees. The friendly rivalry, networking and educational component makes the Road-E-O a winning combination!
